

Meet the Archivists - Free Event

Monday 3 November 2014

Hosted by: The British Library, 96 Euston Road, London, NW1 2DB

The Business Archives Council is once again organising a Meet the Archivists workshop for students. The workshop aims to bring archivists and academics together to explore ways in which new research students can identify and use business records in a surprising variety of different research fields. Participants will be able to explore the vast and varied materials available at many of the UK's business archives.

The event will include an archives skills workshop run by eminent academic historians and a session where participants will be able to meet the archivists and discuss their research interests.

This year's event, to be held on Monday 3 November, will be hosted by The British Library. A programme of the day's events is detailed below.

Registration is now open. Students wishing to book should email Joseph Lane:
J.P.Lane@lse.ac.uk

Programme:

9:30-10:00 Registration.

10:00-10:15 Sue Ashpitel, The British Library: Welcome to The British Library.

10:15-10:45 Alex Ritchie, National Archives: Introduction.

10:45-11:15 Elizabeth Micaković, National Archives: What's the use? Your research and business archives.

11:15-12:15 Meet the Archivists. Coffee break around the archive expositions: a chance for researchers and archivists to meet.

12:15-12:45 Dr Roy Edwards, University of Southampton: Where to begin? Searching for primary sources in business history.

12:45-13:15 Practical session.

13:15-13:30 Q & A and close.

The session will be chaired by Dr Mike Anson, Bank of England Archive.